THE STORY

Friday, 17:52. Somebody ate the birthday cake, and SENTINEL, the office's brand-new security bot, takes it badly. It seals every door on the floor and starts a surprise audit. Nobody goes home for the weekend until the audit passes.

Escape Your Office is a free co-op escape room that runs in the browser. Your team spreads out over three rooms you can look around in 360°: the open office, the boardroom and the kitchen. What you need to open a lock is rarely in the same room as the lock, so people split up, say what they see and put it together. Most of the game happens in conversation.

The tone is light office comedy: sticky notes, voicemails from colleagues and a bot that takes cake very seriously. A run takes about 20 minutes, so it fits at the start of a meeting or as a first game for a team that has never played one. It is also a quick way to check that everyone in your group can connect before a longer session. We built the rooms from phone photos of a real office, and we can build one from yours.

HOW IT PLAYS

- 1 Join the call and the game
Everyone opens the session link in a browser and types a name.
- 2 Look around
Drag to look around each room in 360°.
- 3 Split up and report back
Anyone can open anything, and everyone sees the same state.
- 4 Some moments need the team
A few steps cannot be done by one person.
- 5 Get home for the weekend
Each lock has hints if you get stuck, and a game host can give a nudge.
